

Director of Infection Control

The Synergy Organization has been retained by a well-respected and financially profitable Mid-Atlantic Health System with over 23,000 employees to recruit a Director of Infection Control for their 609-bed flagship hospital. They are one of the most prestigious medical centers in the Nation and have an affiliation with a well-known Academic Institution, keeping them at the forefront of medical advancements, cutting edge research, and some of the most advanced technology available. The Hospital has been designated with 'Magnet' status, routinely is cited for their top rated physicians, and they were ranked among the "Best in the Nation" by US News & World Report thirteen years running. The organization has invested significant capital resources in numerous current and upcoming construction and renovation projects. They have also been voted as one of the top places to work in the region and have received the Gold e-healthcare leadership award. Their Neuroscience department was the first on the East Coast to offer the CyberKnife technology, they are the only NCI designated Comprehensive Cancer Care Center in the region and they have top rated Liver and Pancreas transplant programs.

In this highly visible and critical position, you will lead all activities related to infection prevention and control. This leader is expected to work with a diverse constituency performing surveillance, educating individuals and devising corrective action plans when necessary to ensure patient safety. You will be challenged to mentor, develop, and grow a team that will function as the clinical experts for this prestigious organization. The organization is looking for a dynamic professional to implement best practices and help the department to become a model for infection control within the Health System and nationwide. You will have the opportunity to enhance your own knowledge and skills through active participation in professional society memberships, and the potential to develop related research projects.

The successful candidate will have demonstrated the ability to build relationships along with proven leadership and communication skills. This professional must lead by example, operate autonomously, and demonstrate a tremendous amount of enthusiasm, energy, and passion. The position requires a thorough understanding of all JCAHO, CDC NNIS and any other regulatory guidelines as they relate to Infection Control.

This exciting career offers competitive compensation, a comprehensive benefits package, relocation assistance, tremendous support throughout the Health System, growth and development opportunities, along with all the resources necessary to achieve success.
