

Multidrug-Resistant Bacteria: A Call to Action

Friday, February 4, 2011
9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Central Time

The Metropolitan Chicago Healthcare Council's Clinical Services Department, in collaboration with Advocate Lutheran General Hospital, the Chicago Department of Public Health, Cook County Department of Public Health, Illinois Department of Public Health and the University of Illinois, Chicago School of Public Health's Mid-America Public Health Training Center, is coordinating a conference to assist healthcare facilities in battling multidrug-resistant organisms. Antibiotic resistance is a public health problem that is growing rapidly in magnitude. The recent discovery of new carbapenemase-producing bacteria has brought this public health problem to the forefront. This conference will address cutting edge issues in antibiotic resistance in our community.

The conference will take place Friday, February 4th, 2011 from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. at Advocate Lutheran General Hospital – 1775 Dempster Street, Park Ridge, IL. Click here for map and directions.
